Farmingville, NY - - Recently, Councilman Kevin LaValle visited AHRC Suffolk's Centereach ICF to enjoy a bagel breakfast and meet with residents and the centers staff. AHRC offers a wide array of programs, services and supports for children and adults with intellectual and other developmental disabilities.

"It was great to spend time and share breakfast with my friends at the Centereach AHRC," said Councilman LaValle. "They are such a wonderful organization and I commend the staff for their dedication and service to the residents and the families that benefit from the services they provide."

AHRC Suffolk is dedicated to applying its professional and financial resources toward improving the lives of people with intellectual and developmental disabilities from birth through end of life. The agency provides individuals with opportunities for attaining the highest level of self-sufficiency in personal growth and development through coordinated and individualized early intervention, preschool, and school age services; vocational training, supported work, prevocational training, day habilitation, Medicaid service coordination, and residential services.
